

Important Notice**

The problems we have been experiencing with the monitoring schedule over the last 6 months or so has culminated in the removal of the problematic fields from the report. The report no longer identifies the current compliance status nor the next collection period. This is a temporary iteration of the monitoring schedule report. We are working on getting the report back to its original useful tool but in the interim decided that a simplified monitoring schedule tool with the number of samples, analytes and frequency was better than no tool at all. As always, please call with any questions. Thank you for your patience while we restore the monitoring schedule report.
